

Press Release

July 9, 2010

Sperian Protection improves its PPE website with customers in mind.

Sperian Protection, a leading manufacturer and global expert in Personal Protective Equipment (PPE), specializing in eye and face protection, hearing protection, respiratory protection, fall protection, protective clothing and protective gloves has improved its website with new features and has given it a new name – www.Sperian.com. The site now makes it easier for customers to search for Sperian product information, by consolidating all Sperian country and brand sites, including: Sperian®, UVEX®, Miller® and Howard Leight®, in one place.

The site introduces several notable features which allow visitors to be more efficient in finding the products they need and more confident with their purchasing decisions. The new features include improved navigation which categorizes products by industry, hazard, type and brand; a more powerful search which allows visitors to search across all countries and regions through a unified product portfolio; more detailed product information and additional documentation to accompany products, including technical product certifications and relevant regulations; a country selector tool which allows visitors to identify which country or regional site they would like to view.

Additional features will be released as the site continues to evolve. In the coming months, My Sperian will provide timely segmented email communications to registrants with industry news and product updates, along with sponsored content focusing on current industry topics.

“Sperian.com has been designed to serve our customers with efficiency. Thanks to its enhanced product information and new navigation, our visitors can easily browse our complete product range and find their solution quickly. Sperian.com is the place to go to find relevant and detailed information about Sperian’s PPE all in one place”, said Mike Moorefield, Sr. Vice President, Marketing Business Unit Americas, Sperian Protection Americas, Inc.
